Preface

In 2010, the World's biggest sporting event, the FIFA World Cup, will take place in South Africa for the first time. The Terminology Coordination Section (TCS) of the National Language Service (NLS) therefore deemed it fit to initiate the Soccer Terminology Project to ensure that each and every South African gets the opportunity to be acquainted with the relevant information pertaining to the World Cup in their own language. Furthermore, this Project not only seeks to facilitate effective communication between broadcasters, journalists, commentators and their listeners, but also to document the multilingual soccer terms in the National Term Bank.

This glossary of terms has about 348 entries. The source text was developed from a long-existing soccer terminology list compiled in 1982, which had about 800 terms but no definitions.

TCS requested the South African Football Association (SAFA) for help with the relevance and comprehensiveness of the term list. They recommended Mr Ian McLeod, a former PSL referee, who assisted with the elimination of outdated terms and discussed the definitions of the remaining terms with the Project Team.

The definitions were thoroughly looked into, completed and edited by the in-house editorial committee. The source text was then circulated to identified specialists to supply target language equivalents. Thereafter, a working meeting was held in Pretoria in March 2009. Different terminologists had interviews with the media and the public was given the opportunity to make comments on the developed terms.

At various consultative workshops, the collaborator groups, experts and speakers of different languages gave their inputs and the term list was updated. The National Language Bodies (NLBs) of the Pan South African Language Board (PanSALB), verified and authenticated the coined terms. They gave their stamp of approval for the dissemination of the terminology to the general public.

The terminology will be disseminated electronically and in hard copy to all provincial government offices. It will also be made available on the DAC website.

Acknowledgements

The NLS would like to thank all the officials of the Department of Arts and Culture who contributed to the success of this project.

Special thanks go to Mr Ian McLeod, former PSL referee and SAFA official, PSL referees and team managers, and former professional soccer players. Their expertise played a major role in the finalisation of the soccer term list. We extend our appreciation to soccer commentators from SABC Radio and TV, and acknowledge the full media coverage by the following stations: Channel Africa, Jacaranda FM, BUWA News, Motsweding FM, Lesedi FM, Univen Radio, East Coast Radio and Ligwalagwala FM.

Many thanks go to Mr Johann Russouw, soccer specialist at Radio Sonder Grense and all collaborators in the provinces, linguists, NLB members, terminologists and translators who participated in adding the equivalents for their particular languages.

Our heartfelt gratitude goes to the following collaborators who diligently prepared for and attended the terminology meetings, and committed themselves to this Project. Their willingness to go the extra mile in contributing to this terminological corpus is highly appreciated.

Explanatory Notes

NLS acknowledges all the input received from the collaborators on the source text document and will ensure that this input is incorporated when we do a revision of this project in the near future.

The project provided NLS with an opportunity to collaborate with SABC Radio and TV, and has laid a foundation for all our future projects. NLS hopes that the terminology project will generate a lot of interest and it will also go a long way in educating our society about the beautiful game.

For the purpose(s) of this project it was decided that the following terms should be treated as synonyms:

- assistant coach vs assistant trainer
- banana kick vs curler
- defender vs fullback

Another challenge that the project team had to deal with was the treatment of acronyms and abbreviations in the term list. This is still a grey area for most African languages as many acronyms and abbreviations are not standardised yet.

To avoid inconsistencies it was resolved that the English acronyms will be used across the languages and that the NLS will engage all the relevant

NLBs in the near future to ensure that such problems are resolved before implementing the secondary term creation phase of all its future projects:
